LINKEDIN

Valerie is a managing partner with The StrataFusion Group and has been delivering creative solutions to complex technical and business problems for twenty years. During her tenure with StrataFusion, she has assisted many organizations with the implementation of improvement strategies such as transforming IT, creating and implementing an IT roadmap, and outsourcing noncore functions to improve overall quality of service delivery. Valeris clients describe her as a resourceful problem solver; an enthusiastic and persuasive team builder; and an intuitive collaborator.

EXPERIENCE

Prior to Stratafusion, Valerie was an Associate Partner at IBM Global Services. While working for IBM, she developed a number of successful practices in CRM and Business Intelligence services. Valerie received numerous awards and accolades including the Presidents Award for building the best partner channel (2001 & 2002) and the Leadership Award for superior performance critical to the success of the business. Prior to IBM, while working as the Director of Latin America for Innovative Systems, Valerie successfully managed the development and implementation of a client-oriented data warehouse for the largest private bank in Brazil. This project earned a commendation from DM Review Magazine and earned her the company award for extraordinary performance with the greatest impact on the company's revenues.

EDUCATION

Valerie is a graduate of Carnegie Mellon with both a Masters of Management and a Bachelor of Science. She has a certification as an Executive Principal from IBM Global Services and is certified in Business Process Reengineering from Price Waterhouse. Valerie is a member of the Advisory Board for the Glow Foundation, is a mentor for Women Unlimited, and is a volunteer speaker for the CIO Executive Development Program at San Francisco State University.
